Student Art Shines at Sedona Workshop!

Justine's first workshop at the Sedona Arts Center, May 10 & 11 was a success. Justine had a group of 7 talented students who were accomplished artists already. Working in a studio with beautiful views of the red mountains, the students were inspired to produce some outstanding inks and etching paintings. The class was provided with all materials including 4 x 6", 5 x 7" and 8 x 10" scratchboards.

- Sharon, a digital and many faceted artist from California, worked on a 9 x 12" Koi Pond. ▶
- Stephanie, a watercolorist and also from California shows off her completed 4 x 6" Sacred Datura painting painted from an original photo source. ▶
- Ruth, an artist from Scottsdale, got a good start on her 9 x 12" cactus and blossoms painting. ▶
- Barbara, from Pine, painted and etched a lovely 4 x 6" cactus painting based on one of Justine's original artworks. ▼

Sunflowers

Upon returning home, taking time to recuperate from the workshop, Justine was finally able to complete her long-running "Sunflowers" painting!

By the way ... Justine will be conducting two workshops for the Sedona Arts Center this coming Autumn and next Spring.

- Saturday & Sunday
November 2nd and 3rd, 2019
- Saturday & Sunday
May 16th and 17th, 2020

More information will be coming ... and don't forget Justine supplies all materials for the workshop!

Wow! Can everybody believe this weather that has hit us this Spring? Floods, snow and tornados whipped through sowing destruction across our country. It has been running 10 to 20 degrees below normal in Arizona. Last week it snowed in Pine and Flagstaff. For the first time in thirty years we saw snow on the ground in Fountain Hills at the end of February.

Then the Valley went on to have the longest and most showy Spring on record.

Finally, the Sacred Datura survived the terrible August flood at Golden Eagle Park and has continued to bloom another day.

◆ Fountain Hills Tour d'Artistes 2019

◆ The Tour d' Artistes this year brought many new people who have moved to Fountain Hills.

◆ During the exhibit and sale Justine sold two of her framed paintings to a couple who had just settled on Palomino Street in Fountain Hills.

◆ Printmaking friend, Mukta Webber and her husband Patrick bought two prints. Patrick is a botanist and is helping our local Botanical Garden group publish a book identifying the plants seen on the walk. Patrick hopes to use Justine's "Prickly Pears and Lady Fingers" on the cover of the book. He said there are four distinct plant groups in the painting and it would make a good cover illustration.
